TEMPLYM DIANNE

The new Coronation and Inauguration of our late most Noble, kinde and good Queene ANNE, in the new Dignitie of Princesse of the Spring, Queene of March and Goddesse of the Yeare.

I. A NNA that was Queene DIDOES Sifter deare,

2. A Was honor'd once as Godde fe of the Yeare,

3. In month of March, of all the Months the Mother,

4 But now March, Spring and Yeare, have got another

5. To be their Goddeffe- Queene, another ANNE

6. The best of all crown'd ANNES fince Crownes began.

7. Her Tombe and Chappel's to a Temple turn'd, 8. Her Stone an Alear, whereon shall be burn'd

9. The flowrie Seafons, dainties all the dayes,

10. Of each March-month hence sacred to her praise.

II. Her prieft stralbe an ANNE of Noble blood

12. (For A NNE was Noble, courteous, kinde and good)

13. Whole Coape compos'd of colours of the Spring,

14. And on her head Crownes coupled with a Ring.
15. Each month of March vpon Saint Danids day,

16. The Maides full fraught with fresh March flowers shall lay

17. On A NNA s Altar first Fruites of the Flowers,

18. For why this Goddeffe Queene, this ANNE of ours,

19. Was the first ANNA-QVEENE, that any where

20. An VNION-CROWNE of Golde began to beare,

21. And the first Queene that ere in ALBIONS Ile,

22. Decored was with V NIONS-Stately Stile.

B

23. The

23. The First of March, which is St. Davids due,

24. Some deckt in Primrofe, some in Purple hue,

25. Both Maides and Matrones shall in troupes repaire,

26, Vnto Queene ANN A's Phane and offer there.

27. The Fairy Nimphes that hant the Woods, and Dales,

28. Of Denmarke, Norway, Scotland, England, Wales,

29. The Iles of Ireland, Ifland, farre and neere,

30. Shall helpe to gather March-flowers enery Yeare.

31. And on the First of March her Sextane Laffe,

32. Named ANNABELL shall ring the Bell, that was

33. Moult of the Silver offerd on the Day,

34. They did her Body in her Chappelliay;

35. That fo foone as they heare the hallow'd knell,

36. And filver-found offlowric ANNABELL,

37. Each Mayde and Metrone may make haft to bring,

38. TO ANNA's Phane the first fruites of the Spring.

39. A lafting Lampe must in her Chappeil burne,

40. Of pureft Oyle powr'd in her holy Vrne;

41. For Anne to Britaine was a Lampe of light,

42. Of gentle Nature, and of peacefull Spright.

43. All Anne s that now doe live within these Iles,

44. In Danish, Gothish grounds hence many miles,

45. Or after shall be borne, and liue to yeares,

46. Each second day of March shall mourne with teares,

47. And all the month so long as March shall last,

48. Mourne Blacke and White, and when the month is past,

49. Offer their mourning habites at her Shrine,

50. To be dealt to the poore with Bread and Wine.

51. All Annes in month of March fhall yearely mourne,

52. Not all at once, but each troupe in their turne,

53. Those of one Canton first, then of another,

54. The great and small, the Daughter and the Mother,

55. Halfe of them all in Blacke, and halfe in white,

56. For so it best becomes this solemne rite.

57. The poore shall mourne vpon the Princes coft,

58. The Richer on their owne; ANNEs godly Ghoft

59. Would

TEMPLVM DIANNAE.

59. Would haue it so; for she was good and kinde,

60. Vnto the Poore, the aged, maim'd and blinde,

61. And did commend vnto her dearest Heire,

62. To heare and helpe the poore with tender care.

63. Who will hereof his greatest glory make,

64. For Gods, his owne, and his sweet Mothers sake.

65. And cause braue Denmarke, did this Lady beare,

66. Our Queene of March and Goddeffe of the Yeare;

67. Therefore the prime place in this honour new,

68. Vnto the Danish ANNE s belongs as due.

69. The first of Mourning ANNEs from thence shall come,

70. The first Shee-priest that shall beflower her Tombe,

71. An ANNE likewile from thence; and the firft Stone 73. That in the ground is laide to build vpon

73. This Phane to ANNE Sweet Prince Se of the Spring,

74. An Austrian A NNE now breathing shall it bring.

75. From fruitfull France, an V NION rich and rare, 76. As good as that, Queene CLEOPATRAWare.

77. For fith Queene ANNE was of the Auftrian race, 78. It's fit that ANNE of Austrie thus should grace

79. The shrine of this sweet Saint, her Cosen deere.

80. And be the first puts to her hand to reere

SI. This stately Temple to ANNES honour'd Name,

82. And yet for further spreading of her Fame,

82. Another Auftrian ANNE of greatest state, 84. An Empreffe ANNE, late dead fhal't dedicate.

85. For our Queene ANNE from ALBERTS two did spring,

86. And Cafars both, which to the light did bring,

87. Two honour'd ANNES of greatest grace and worth,

88. Which vnto Saxe and Brand: burg brought forth,

89. Faire Impes of Honour, from whome brauest blood,

90. Deriued was to Denmarks ANNE the good,

91. For which two ANNA's fakes, two ANNA's more,

92. Of the same blood and race striue to decore,

93. The Temple of Queene A N N E one of their kin,

94. The one, when as the ground-worke doth begin;

95. The

TEMPLYM DIANNAE.

95. The other when it is brought to an End,

96. And that the Danish Soyle an ANNE Shall fend,

97. To celebrate the rites in glorious guife,

98. In honour of Queene ANNEthat therein lyes,

99. Or rather liues, adored with a Quire,

100. As Springs New Queene and Goddeffe of the Yeare.

This Poeme, called DIANN & TEMPLVM, the Author purposeth to have published in seaven Languages: to wit, Greeke, Latin, Spanish, Italian, French, Dutch and English, together with another called PANALBION OF TEMPLVMPACIS sew Concordix Phanum in Honour of our living King and dead Queene of VNION, for a more general and solemne celebration of their Royal Fame and vniting Fortune.

CAROLANNA:

241. A CHARLEs the good, great honour of the Ile. 242. Loadstone of hearts, more then ten thousand miles, 243. And as much joy, bleft ANNE maift thou receive. 244. Of thy deere Sonne, as ANNE that did Conceine 245. A matchleffe MARY, that to light did bring 246. I Es vs a Prieft, a Prophet, and a King. 247. Or if my zealous wish doe ought transgresse 248. Reasons strict rule; some so will deeme I gelle. 249. At leaft, afmuch as ANN E that once did beere, 250. To ELKANAH her louing Spouse and Sire, 251. A Sonne of greatest hope, SAMVELL by Name. 252. Who by his godly life, gain'd greatest fame. 253. Good Lord! how thefe two ANNES and others more. 254. As she that did olde T OBIES Bed decore. 255. Commend't for holy life and vertuous trade; 256. And that same A NNE, which once her dwelling made. 257. Whole fourescore yeares and foure in that pure place. 258. Which God did with his holy prefence grace. 259. Leading therein a chast and holy life, 260. After that she had lived seaven yeares a Wife! 261. Good Lord! Ifay, how all their ANNES docioy, 262. To fee Queene Anne thus freed from Earths annoy. 263. And how with them all the Queene ANNE shaue beene, 264. But chiefly those, whome Bruaines Ile hath scene. 265. Applaude this Princesse that now hence is gone, 266. To be enftated in Heavens higher Throne! 267. But most of all, five ANNES from whom she hath 268. Deriu'd her Noble blood, and vitall breath. 369. Two Annes of Auftrie, and the first of them 270. Triumphant A LBERTS Childe, first of that Name. 271, Married to HERMAN Brand burgs braue Heyre, 272. The other ANN E both gracefull, wife and faire, 273. A Daughter was from fecond ALBERT's Loyne, 274. And did to Saxes valiant WILLIAM joyne. 275. Two other ANNES from Brandeburg did fpring, 276. Great IOHN his ANNE was matcht to Denmarkes King, 277.Firft

277. Firft FRIDERIKE; but Prince I OACHI Mslaffe, 278. To Meckleburgs Duke ALBERT wedded was. 279 . And the fift A NNE was of Polonian Seed, 280, King CASIMIRS, whose Wife of Austrian breed, 281. Great ALBERTS Childe, ELIZABETH by Name, 282. Which ANNE was wedded to a Prince of Fame, 283 To Pomerans praised Duke, BvGsLAthe bolde, 284. Surnam'd the Great, and for his state extolde. 285. From whome S o P H T A sprung the second Mate 286. Of the first FRIDERIKE rul'd Denmarkes state. 287. Their Gule E LIZA, Meckleburg did wed, 288. Duke VLRICK was his Name; whose marriage-Bed 289. Was bleft with fweet SOPHIA Denmarks Queene, 290. The second FRIDERIKS wife, of high esteeme, 291. Which praised Princely paire to light brought forth, 292. Couragious CHRISTIAN fam'd for greatest worth. 293. With Dukes of Holfter two, VIRICK and IOHN, 294. Brothers to ANNE whom now we mourne and moane, 295. Great Britaines brightelt Queene, whose Sifter faire, 296. ELIZA wedded I v LF braue Brunswicks Heyre. 297. HEDVIGEthe Duke of Saxe to Husband got, 298. A V G V S T A was the Duke of Holfterslot. 299. Thus was Queene ANNE sprung from the Austrian kinde, 300. Both by her Fathers fide, and Mothers Line. 301. From two braue A LBERTS German Cefars crown'd, 302. Like as out King by Parents both renown'd, 303. Doth from first ALBERT highest blood receive 304. By both his Girles whom he in Marriage gaue, 305. The one, ELIZABETH to Lorrans Lord, 306. Duke FRIDERIKE who by his Arength and Sword, 307. The stile of Champion wan; the others Name 308. MARGRITE, ninth THERRY's wife and Clesselands Dame. 309. With these five ANNES, three other of her kin, 3.10. Doe joyne in their reloy cing, which have bin, 311. Renown'd for worth, all three of later yeares.

336, Great PHILIPS Girle, a Dame of gracefull state.

337. Saxe, Brandeburg, with Brunswicke, most the Rhine

338. Doe burft with teares, as falt as any brine;

339. ELIZA fo laments, her Mother ANNE,

340. That languishing she lyes, blacke, pale and wanne.

341. Her Princely Spouse, with Mother, Sifters race.

342. Exchange their finiles each with a mournfull face.

343. But most of all, Prince CHARLES her hopefull Sonne,

344. Bemoanes his Mothers death; as though vndone

345. He were by this great loffe; me thinkes, of Teares,

346. A Christall Tombe he to his Mother reeres.

347. Goe stately Thames, and tell thy Sister Rhine,

348. With Denmarks Sound, this ynmatcht loffe of thine.

349. And

349. And if yee any finde so hard of heart,

350. Not mourning heere or there in any part,

35 1. Then burft forth of your bankes, and make no flay,

352. Till with your ftreames ye rape them cleane away.

353. Saddeft of flames, from those Cælestiall Towers,

354. Thou didft portend this loffe this croffe of ours,

355. And when, as though a firebrand did fall

356. From thy Cortcht face, late fired was White-Hall,

357. A figne it was, that Britans fickned Dame,

The Epitaph of Prince CHARLES, called the Couragious and Valiant, Duke of Lorraine, from whome our most Noble Prince

CHARLES is both by Father and Mother
Twice descended in the tenth Degree.

On vos Poetas, non Musas, nullum plausum Lyra volo,
Nullam cupressum seralem, heliconem nullum, illum necquidem
Parnassum; vi mihi defuncto addatur prastantius Encomium,
Non Marmoris Pary decore, haud vllo splendore est opus
Artisicis, vi mihi tumulum celebriorem comparem;
Victoriarum Palma quas quastui olim forti manu,
Euersa mania, & turres solo aquata, capti Duces,
Erepta vexilla, ac castra hostium occupata fortiter,
Amplam satis Sepulturam prabent, subtus quam conditur
Non morte Corpus; Verum virtutis maiori gloria.
His ipse viuo clarior; magissi viuam imposterum,
Acis mihi tumulus quadrat; nec certe debetur minor;
Cumlaude rerum gestarum viuens orbem compleuerim.

Care not for Parnassian praise nor for Apollo's lyre,
Nor for those that hant Helicon, and wreaths of Lawrell weare.
Nor doe I crave that men should pitch to me a Capresse Pole,
Orrecre a Tombe of Parian pride, or gilde my shrine with golde,
Such glistering glory I neglect; so that skild Artists wit,
My people needs not to employ, a Tombe for me to sit,
Those Conquering Palmes and ay-greene Bayes that deckt my head and hands,

Those Walls I scaled, those Townes I tooke, with Townes in forraine

Those war-like Ensignes that Irest, those Captaines bold & wight, Which of I foyl'd in pitched Field with martial force and might; These thinges shall setue for stately Tombe, wherein my Corpes shall sye,

Through

Through love of glory thither brought, and not that it did dye, As others doe that fall to dust; and nothing e're have done, That's worthy of this humaine life, or of this glorious Sunne. My by-past life to all is knowne, and now the life I leade, More glorious is by great degrees, those Bayes which on my head Once fill'd both farre and neere the earth with flying praise & same Of my brave seats, and in each place pitcht Trophies to my name. Those per'shing Palmes, & Bayes I say, are nothing to those slowres, And peacefull Palmes, that doe adorne these hands & heads of ours, Which dwell about the Christall skie, and have that glory wunne. Through I e s v s grace that makes vs shine as cleere as any Sunne.

From CHARLES the Valiant, twice intenth degree, by Prince CHARLES is Sprung, to prove twice from as bee.

A wigh:

A wight more bright breath'd not in Britanie,
For grace of face, for mildnesse, modestie,
Her balmie Body served for a Cell,
Vnto her Virgin-soule, where it did dwell
Adorned with faith, hope, chastery and love;
Which were as wings to mount this Bird above,
Whilst S v s s ex s New-hall doth her Body holde,
Great I o v e s New-Hall, White-Hall above the Pole,
Receives her new-white-soule, 2 Virgin-bride,
Their for to sit by I E S V S Virgin-stide,
The Virgin-hands of glistering H e a v e n s New-Hall,
Set on her head the Crowne Virginial,
And thus they sing and shout, let's all to day,
Honor H o n o r a Heavens new Queene of May.

An Epitaph upon the same Lady HONOR.

HONOR is Dead, and yet doth HONOR Live,
For two New-Halls doe part between them twaine HONOR S two parts; SVSSE XS New-Hall doth give

To HEAVENS New-Hall in blisse for to abide,
Till Death be dead durst HONOR thus divide.

Verles

Verses in Honour of the memorie of the no lesse vertuous then Noble young Lady PENEL OPE, a branch of the heroicke House of Essex, Wife to Sir GERVASE CLIFTON, Knight Baronet.

Dedicated to her two Noble Brothers, ROBERT Earle of Warwicke, and Sir HENRY RICH, Knight of the Bath, and Captaine of his Maiesties Garde.

PENELOPE the Chafte, when she did die, . Ofher wife, modest Heure, her worth and Fame To a fuch wight, as the were pleased to name, No sooner I ov z had granted her defire, But to the flately Dames, that their flood by her. She turnes and fayes; Ladyes of Greece renown'd, Whose beautious browes the Graces three have crown'd. With their exquisite Gifts in richest store, Beare witnesse to me now, I you implore, To whome and where it is, that after death, I doe my Heart and choylest parts bequeath. Loe heere before you all; I charge my Ghoft, My Heart to carry to the Scottifb Coast To Caledon; where my VIYSSES deere, An Altar to the Gods once did vpreere, And their to offer't on that facted Stone. My (weet-Hart pitcht in the Wood Caledon. Sith Ione with his great Councell doth decree For guerdon of my purest Chastitie. That my chafte Heart shall on that Altar fland, A Sacrifice for Ladyes of that Land, Heaued vp on Turtle-winges, aye till the time That in that happy Ile, in th' English Clime,

From Noble Parents rich in Graces flowe, A wight on whome, I will my worth bestowe, That shall be named PENELOPE 25 I, And eke inherite my tryed Chaftitie. For when hereafter heere three thousand yeares, Braue Essex's Daughter in her belly beares, That wight my deere Idea, whome I loue, Then shall my Heart from Caledon remove. Mounted on Turtle-winges, and shall not rest. Till it be brought to lodge within her Breft. But fith the Gods will grant no longer yeares, For my beart to sojourne beneath the Sphares. Then once my deere VLYSSES did remaine Absent me fro, and I withouten staine; Therefore it is that noble CLIFTON'S Wife, Falls in her Spring, and so protracts her life, Not aboue Twenty yeares; loe then she dyes, And chafte P ENELOPS heart doth scale the skyes. Yet left the Gods should feem t'haue done her wrong, In that her life, they did no more prolong, To recompence the shortnes of her dayes, With one confent, all and each of them fayes We doe decree, that every gift and part, That she did harbour in her Heauen-bred beart, And every thing wherein the did excell, Shall live in her deere Sifter Is ABELL. And this we doe ordaine so much the more. Because PENELOP-like she doth decore, Her tender Noble-breast with every kinde, Of Parts and Arts fit for a worthy minde. But most of all, for that in ornate Verfe, Her pregnant wit could celebrate the Hearfe Of her who being dead, yet cannot chuse, But live for aye by I SABEL LA's Mufe.
